TCP is a connection oriented oriented protocol that ensures reliable data transmission between devices over a network. It provides error checking, sequencing, and flow control to maintain data integrity.